

Chairman Weaver Resents Language Used in Chamber's Letter to Members.

Not wedded to Any Special Number
The Finance Committees of the House and Senate have reported a joint resolution providing for appointment of a special committee of twenty members to consider tax reform. In testimony before the committee of the General Assembly which Governor Stuart has indicated his willingness to call, Chairman Echols, of the Senate Finance Committee, made it plain at the start that he had no intention of committing Chairman Weaver, of the House Committee on Finance, to any special number. He said he would be fairly responsive to suggestions to give priority to tax matters, but that he would insist that it be a committee of the General Assembly—not a commission of outside "experts," as has been suggested.

The Chamber of Commerce circulated letters to all members on Friday after telling of a conference of the committee on taxation on Thursday night, urges every member to use influence to get the bill passed. In support of Senate bill No. 465, this is the Walker-Gordon bill, proposing the appointment of a tax commission of five members to be appointed by the Governor to take office on April 1, at $100 per month each.

Say Chamber Was Ignored.

The chamber circular continues: "The question of tax reform is most vital and important, but you will not find from the notice referred to, the apparent apathy of the members of the chamber to the same old and ineffective measure proposed by the Finance Committee of the two houses, and the manner in which they ignored not only the chamber's proposition, but also that of the conference on tax reform, which was recently held in Richmond, and which the chamber was deputed to present. The resolution is signed by R. C. Dunbar, secretary."

A copy of the chamber circular letter was handed Chairman Weaver, of the House Finance Committee by Mr. Monaghan, of the Richmond delegation. Mr. Weaver at once wrote Secretary Dunlop, advising him of the hour fixed for the public hearing on Monday night, and added:

Requested No Hearing.

"Speaking for the House Finance Committee, I desire to say that your statement is wholly erroneous and utterly without foundation. The truth is that neither you nor your body have ever requested of our committee a hearing, and when the Baker-Land resolution was reported, there was cor-fully no 'proposition' of your body before our committee, because, as Mr. Dunlop said this morning, his resolution was not ready for consideration this week, and we at once permitted him to name the date for the hearing. We would have extended you the same courtesy had you requested it, and I think you should at once take the matter into consideration.

Mr. Weaver received last yesterday a letter of apology from Mr. Dunlop, with the statement that the chamber committee would appear at the hearing on Monday night.

Mr. Weaver has been to the 'tax commission,' said Mr. Weaver, 'and got nothing from it. This time we are looking at the practical side of the question and want a law that will be adopted, and not be shot to pieces on the floor as the revenue tax commission report was. We are not particular as to the size of the committee, if it be fairly representative, and we want the committee to have the power to consult and employ experts, and get all the advice they can. I think and reported must be one that members of the General Assembly, elected by the people and responsible to them, will be willing to stand for on the floor of the two houses. I do not know what Mr. Dunlop means by 'a more effective measure.' We tried the tax commission, and the chamber is advocating two years ago. What we recommend now is not 'the same old plan,' but the best judgment of both committees as to the manner of proceeding in a difficult and important matter. The General Assembly is responsible.'

At the evening service in St. Paul's Episcopal Church Rev. W. Russell Bewle will preach on "Twentieth Century Christianity," the subject of a widely-discussed address by ex-President Eliot, of Harvard University. He will show how the church can agree with the views of Dr. Eliot, and how it can meet the demands of present sciences on Temple Street, for failure to properly number her house after being directed to do so several days ago. She was fined $100 for maintaining a objectionable resort at 223 Temple Street. The City Engineer's office recently directed her to change the num-to questionings.

"Heroes of the Cross" will be the subject of the sermon to be preached this morning by Rev. John W. Shackford in Broad Street Methodist Church. His theme tonight will be "The Savior of the Lost."

Rev. W. J. Young, D. D., will preach this morning in Trinity Methodist Church on the subject: "The Higher Life evening: 8:30."
